

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A condom with a wearing auxiliary device including a condom made of a natural rubber or a synthetic rubber and a wearing auxiliary device, 5 including a structure in which the wearing auxiliary device is used as a core material of the rolled-up part which is formed by rolling-up a condom body from the open end of the condom toward the closed end having a teat so that the outer surface of the condom 10 turns inside, wherein the wearing auxiliary device includes a wearing auxiliary device selected from the group consisting of a wearing auxiliary device (a) including a coil-shaped member composed of a material selected from the group consisting of a rubber-like 15 elastic substance, a polymer foam, a polymeric substance and a metal; and a wearing auxiliary device (b) composed of a polymeric material having rubber elasticity.